Beauty and the Beasts

Is there anything more beautiful than the first Iris of summer?

While worms are a gardener's best friend, slugs are their nemesis.

Don't fret. These little pests are easily defeated by a little juice of the barley - Beer.

Simply pour a little beer into some empty jars and place them in the soil, with the rims of the jars at ground level. The beer loving slugs will drop in for a drink, which will be their last because they can't get back out.

Elegant Grab Bars to Fit Any Decor

Slips and slides in the bathroom are not limited to our older family members. Whether it's Mom rushing to get out of the bath before her family descends or our 6 year old taking his first "big boy" shower by himself, slips happen.

When they do, the towel bar is the likely target to help steady ourselves.

That's how towel bars get ripped out of the wall - too much weight on something intended to hold a pound or two.

For safety, we recommend every family install grab bars in the bath.

Helpful Hints for Homeowners

Don't Damage your Toilet Tank Works with Chemicals

Did you know that toilet tanks come with a warning - Do not put any chemicals in your toilet tank. Those toilet cleaning chemicals that are added to the tank can actually damage the plumbing parts. Instead, use your favorite product directly in the bowl.

Speaking of bowl cleaning, studies have shown that your average bottle of vinegar (usually a 5% solution) will kill just as many germs as any antibacterial concoction you'll find in the cleaning aisles of your local grocery store.

Not only does vinegar kill bacteria, germs, and mold quite readily, but it is also a natural lime remover, because it's an acid, and acid reacts with lime deposits.

When most people hear the words "grab bar", they think of those seen in hospital bathrooms - utilitarian but not too attractive. Well, that's all changed as fixture manufacturers have recognized that homeowners want safety without sacrificing décor.

The combination grab bar towel holders we recommend come in a variety of attractive finishes to match the most elegant bath accessories. Installed with special mounting brackets, they will withstand up to 400 pounds of weight protecting not only you but also your wall.
